

REBELS GAIN A STATE

Alagoas Revolts and Drives Back Peixoto's Troops.

Sao Paulo Held in Check Only by Strong Loyal Forces.

Do Mello Said to Have Resumed Command of the Republic.

(Copyright, 1894, Associated Press.)

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 15.—Senator Galvao, Minister of War, has resigned owing to disagreements with President Peixoto regarding the treatment of political prisoners.

Col. Macedo, commander of the Fort of Santa Cruz, has been arrested upon suspicion of being a spy of Admiral de Mello.

The rebels appear to be making headway in Parana, which State is said to be in the hands of the insurgents.

Sao Paulo, capital of the State of that name, upon which the rebels were recently reported to be marching after having made a landing at the mouth of the Santos river, is said to be disposed to join the insurgent forces.

The Government has replaced the regiments in garrison at Sao Paulo and at Santos with troops from this city and other places, selecting regiments of whose loyalty it feels certain.

Reports now say that the Southern rebel force, which landed with the intention of marching upon Sao Paulo, has suddenly been instructed to march direct upon Rio de Janeiro, with the intention of taking President Peixoto in the rear.

The Government has sent troops to meet the rebel army, and a battle is said to be imminent on the frontiers of Parana and Sao Paulo.

Despatches received here say the State of Alagoas has declared itself in favor of the insurgent cause. It is added that a severe conflict has taken place in Alagoas between the inhabitants and the Government troops, during which a number were killed and wounded on both sides. The Government troops are reported to have been defeated.

President Peixoto is said to be informed that the influence of foreigners is being strongly used at Sao Paulo, Santos and elsewhere, in the interests of the insurgents, and the Government, after repeated warnings, has been compelled to suppress all the foreign newspapers published at Sao Paulo and to cause the arrest of the manager of a German paper.

There is the possibility of a revolt in the State of Pernambuco.

Throughout all these movements the exact whereabouts of Admiral de Mello continue to be somewhat of a mystery. The general opinion is that he is cruising off the port of Santos and co-operating, in some manner, with the Southern forces which recently landed near Santos.

Do Mello is said to have so far recovered his health as to be able to resume active command of the Republic.

NEW YORK ANARCHIST SPY.

Said to Be at Work in Pittsburgh to Aid Berkman.

(By Associated Press.)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 15.—The New York Anarchists who last week opened negotiations with a view to having the case of Berkman, H. C. Frick's assassin, taken up again, are in a ferment to discuss the question of the recent publication of the details. To discover the traitor, their ranks were energized by the arrival of a New York Anarchist agent in Pittsburgh. He is also instructed to keep an eye on everything going on in the court-house against the Mansfield rioters.

With regard to the Berkman case, the circle he represents in New York is determined to find out how their letters and intentions were betrayed to the newspapers. They had suspected for some time that the traitor was in their ranks, and now they are convinced he is dangerous. Berkman's comrades are determined to try and get a diminution of the sentence.

Attorney Marshall does not think that the Berkman negotiations will prove further towards anything definite.

ONE MAN STARVED TO DEATH.

Lifboat Crew Succors People on the Island of Inistrahull.

(By Associated Press.)

DUBLIN, Feb. 15.—A lifboat succeeded in reaching the island of Inistrahull, nine miles to the north of Malin Head, at the extreme north of Ireland, whose fifty inhabitants have been unable for weeks past to communicate with the mainland, and who were believed to have been in danger of dying from starvation.

The lifboat was buffeted by enormous seas, which filled the boat and necessitated lashing the oarsmen to their seats. The people of Inistrahull were found in some straits; they had been compelled to use the furniture and woodwork of their houses for fuel.

There was only a handful of potatoes left on the island, and one man had died of starvation, and others were suffering severely from lack of food.

The crew of the lifboat left all the provisions they had with them, and succeeded in returning safely to the mainland. More food will be sent to Inistrahull immediately.

DAVID ON THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

(By Associated Press.)

DUBLIN, Feb. 15.—At the fortnightly meeting of the Irish Federation last night Michael Davitt said he hoped that the Liberals would go in for the extinction of the monstrous anomaly of the house of lords, which he said was a blot on the face of the nation.

When Davitt was asked, "we gave her Castoria," when she was a child, she cried for Castoria, when she became a child, she clung to Castoria, when she had children, she gave them Castoria.

John Walsh's Brutal Neglect of His Dying Mother.

She Died Monday and Her Body Is Yet Unburied.

Ruthlessly Squanders Money Given Him for Her Burial.

John E. Walsh, of 124 Mott street, entered the Mulberry street station at 11 o'clock this morning, and said that his mother had died Monday night, and that her body was still awaiting burial.

He appeared to be intoxicated, and Sergeant Strope immediately telegraphed to Police Headquarters this information.

"It has been reported at this station that Winifred Walsh, sixty-five years old, of 124 Mott street, third floor, rear, died on Monday night last and that her body is still awaiting burial.

The crowd which gathered in the apartments, owing to the displacement of relatives.

It was learned that Walsh hurried to the station house this morning because neighbors had threatened to have him arrested unless his mother was buried.

An "Evening World" reporter went to the house this morning and found a scene that beggars description. The dead woman lay on a lounge and decomposition had set in. She had been suffering from Bright's disease, and had died at 8:45 o'clock Monday night.

The crowd which gathered in the apartments, owing to the displacement of relatives.

Two or three women were in the house at the time the reporter arrived. They were all crying and talking about the case. When asked where the son was, everybody said they did not know.

Suddenly the wife of John Walsh, who had been in another room, came running out of the door of an adjoining bedroom, crying dramatically as she went to the body of a man lying in a drunken sleep on the bed.

"It's a shame," she cried, "my mother is not buried. He is a drunkard, father, and she has been suffering from Bright's disease, and had died at 8:45 o'clock Monday night.

At this juncture a policeman came into the room and dragged Walsh out of the house. He was too dazed to make any explanation.

Mrs. Walsh, his wife, told the policeman that she had been married to John Walsh for twenty years, and that she had been suffering from Bright's disease, and had died at 8:45 o'clock Monday night.

DETECTIVE PRICE ACCUSED.

Waiter Williams Says He Knocked Him Down Prison Stairs.

Justice Simms Orders an Investigation Made.

Harry P. Williams, the former waiter of the Savoy Club, 12 West 25th street, who is in Harlem Prison under $1,000 bail, charged with stealing $75 of the Club's money, has engaged Lawyer Henry C. White, of the Legal Aid Society, to make charges of assault against Detective Price, of the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station.

Williams says that last Tuesday, after he was arraigned and on his way to the prison, Detective Price struck him on the back of the neck. He and the officer, he said, were at the top of the narrow stone steps leading to the prison cells below at the time.

Williams rolled all the way down these steps with Detective Price at his heels to prevent the prisoner from making his escape through the door leading to the street.

Williams at the time apparently sustained no more injury than a deep scratch on the right ear. Later in the day his sister Julia came from Tarrytown, where Williams lived, and called at the prison. Williams, he said, was bleeding copiously. His sister went up to see Justice Simms, and told him that her brother had been assaulted, and she feared that his ear-drum was broken.

Justice Simms began an investigation by sending John A. O'Brien, a detective, to determine the extent of the injury. Williams was, therefore, given into the custody of Detective Price and taken to the hospital in an ambulance.
